COMPLAINTS PROCEDURE

1.0 GENERAL PRINCIPLES

- 1.1 Rowan Alba has a formal complaints system for investigating and responding to complaints made by the users of services. The procedure outlines the overall organisational principles and practice for resolving and responding to complaints.
- 1.2 Complaints are viewed by Rowan Alba as a constructive part of the organisation's learning process, as they assist accountability for service provision.
- 1.3 The complaints procedure will be clear, straightforward and easy to understand and use. Written materials will be simply written and where possible, available in translations.
- 1.4 The complaints procedure covers all aspects of the service delivery throughout the organisation. However, complaints about other service users, which are not about the service response, should be dealt with using the Resident User and Neighbour Dispute or harassment procedures as appropriate.
- 1.5 The complaints procedure can be used by any service user, former service user, an applicant or prospective applicant for accommodation, centre, care or outreach service user, volunteer or training placement who is dissatisfied with the service provided to them by Rowan Alba as an individual. Complaints should generally be reported immediately. Those registered more than three months after the relevant event will only be actioned in exceptional circumstances.
- 1.6 Information about the complaints procedure will be included in information provided to applicants and all service users and will be available and publicised in the projects and offices. Managers should ensure that the Complaints Policy (Service User Summary) is displayed on all service notice boards.

- 1.7 No one will be treated less favourably or penalised in any way for making a complaint.
- 1.8 The complaints procedure will allow for a complainant to make use of an independent advocate.
- 1.9 Complaints will be dealt with as quickly and efficiently as possible. Maximum time limits will be laid down for responding to complaints at each stage of the procedure. A complainant wishing to take a complaint to the next stage must do so within three months of receiving the written outcome of the previous stage.
- 1.10 All complaints will be investigated fully, carefully and fairly. All those involved will be informed in writing of the decisions taken at the end of each stage, reasons for them, and what further action can be taken if the complainant is dissatisfied with the decision.
- 1.11 The aim at each stage will be to establish either that complaint is settled, or that a decision is taken about the complaint, so that it can, if required, proceed to the next stage.
- 1.12 All complaints will be treated as confidential. Where records are kept for monitoring purposes, the complainant's name will not be used.
- 1.13 Complaints will be recorded and monitored as part of the organisation's systems for evaluating the quality and effectiveness of its services overall. Appropriate remedial action will always be taken.
- 1.14 Staff will be informed of the procedures for dealing with complaints and training will be given about the aims of the complaints procedure and how it should be implemented.
- 1.15 The training will emphasise the importance of responding effectively to concerns and problems as they arise to ensure that the use of the procedure is minimised.
- 1.16 Service Users will be regularly updated about complaint themes and service responses through the local newsletters, meetings and liaison forums.
- 1.17 A complaint must be registered within six months of the relevant occurrence or series of occurrences.

2.0 MAKING A COMPLAINT

- 2.1 The procedure defines levels within Rowan Alba at which a complaint can be heard. These are the informal stage to a front line member of staff; the first stage formal complaint, to the Team Leader; second stage to the Manager and an appeal stage to the Chief Executive.
- 2.2 If the complainant exhausts the complaints procedure they will be referred to the Care Inspectorate or appropriate service funder such as social services. Where services are provided through a partner housing association the complaint will be referred to their complaints procedure.
- 2.3 Each stage should be completed before a complaint is considered at the next level.

3.0 INFORMAL APPROACH

This is where discussions should start and, unless there are exceptional circumstances, there should be full discussion at this informal level. People with problems or complaints will be advised to resolve them through informal discussion before using Rowan Alba's formal complaints procedure.
- 3.2 RACP13 sets out guidelines for staff on dealing with complaints at this informal stage.
- 3.3 RACP14 sets out the informal complaints log that must be completed by the staff member, with the Scheme Manager checking and initialling and dating each entry.
- 3.4 The Scheme Manager must closely monitor the informal complaints logbook on an ongoing basis.

- 4.3 In the case of serious complaints the Chief Executive themselves must always present at the follow-up meeting.
- 4.4 A complaints record form will be kept of the meeting. See RACP16. The member of staff should sign this. The report will be forwarded to the Chief Executive.
- 4.5 A written response will always be sent including the right to take the complaint to the Chief Executive if they are still unhappy with the response or outcome. They should be asked to attempt to state what they would like to occur to resolve the issues.
- 4.6 If the service user does not turn up for the meeting, this should be noted, but the complaint must still be investigated.
- 4.7 The Project Manager must review the report and be satisfied that the appropriate response and remedial action has been taken.
- 4.8 The Project Manager must closely monitor complaints on an on-going basis. A summary of complaints will be provided on the monthly monitoring report form, and be reported to the Chief Executive.
